- 1 Investment in Namibia increased from N$4445 million in 1998 to N$4909 million in 1999 at current market prices. In the same period, according to a government report, overall economic growth in Namibia was 3.8%.

The report examined the main factors for this and stated that the primary sector registered a positive growth. Agriculture showed an increase of 11.7% in 1999 compared with 1.8% in 1998, fishing grew by 1.3% in 1999 and diamonds showed an increase of 9.4% in 1999, compared with 1.3% in 1998.

The secondary sector recorded a decline of 1.7% in 1999, with manufacturing decreasing by 0.6%, fish processing decreasing by 9.6% and construction declining by 18.3%.

- (a) What is meant by investment? [2]
- (b) In the first sentence of the article you will find the phrase 'current market prices'. What does this phrase tell you? [2]
- (c) The article says economic growth rose by 3.8%.
- (i) Define what is meant by economic growth. [2]
- (ii) Explain the link between a rise in investment and a rise in economic growth. [4]
- (d) An aim of government policy is to achieve economic growth. Explain what benefits economic growth can bring to a country. [6]
- (e) Discuss whether the information allows you to determine which is the most significant sector in the Namibian economy. [4]

- 2 In 2001 there was a crisis in the farming industry in the UK. The spread of a disease meant many animals had to be killed. The government decided to compensate the farmers with a subsidy.

- (a) Explain what is meant by a subsidy and illustrate the effect of a subsidy in a market by using a demand and supply diagram. [4]
- (b) Discuss how UK farmers' costs, revenues and profits might have changed in 2001. [6]

- 3 In the UK the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds (RSPB) has recently bought land around the coast to prevent building on the area where rare birds breed. It has received donations from the public towards the cost. The RSPB plans to set up special visitor centres in the area.

- (a) Explain which factors of production are involved in the above action by the RSPB. [4]
- (b) Discuss whether the local area might be more likely to gain or lose from the action of the RSPB. [6]

4 Countries are categorised as less developed because of their poverty and low average incomes, their lack of good human resources and their low level of economic diversification.

(a) Explain what is meant by

(i) 'their lack of good human resources', [3]

(ii) 'their low level of economic diversification'. [3]

(b) Explain whether it can be concluded from the above statement that all people in less developed countries are poor. [4]

5 'The most effective support the industrialised countries could provide for the poorer nations would be to open their markets to the products of developing countries by having fewer trade restrictions.' (Trade and Industry Minister for Ghana, 2001)

(a) What forms do trade restrictions often take? [3]

(b) Discuss the immediate and the long-term changes that might occur in developing countries if trading restrictions were reduced. [7]
