
SOCIOLOGY

9699/11

Paper 1 The Family

October/November 2018

1 hour 30 minutes

No Additional Materials are required.

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

An answer booklet is provided inside this question paper. You should follow the instructions on the front cover of the answer booklet. If you need additional answer paper ask the invigilator for a continuation booklet.

Answer Question 1 and either Question 2 or Question 3.

The number of marks is given in brackets [] at the end of each question or part question.

This document consists of 2 printed pages, 2 blank pages and 1 Insert.

Section A

Answer Question 1.

- 1 The length of time a person may expect to live is known as life expectancy. As death rates have fallen worldwide, life expectancy has increased. One reason for this increase in life expectancy is that fewer deaths occur in infants and the young because health and sanitation have improved. These developments have had a major impact on fertility rates. Other factors, such as war, famine and migration can also affect the amount of time an individual may expect to live.

Changes in life expectancy influence the structure of families and households. There are many different structures, varying from nuclear and extended families to lone parent families and single person households. Different structures are not the only type of diversity in families. Relationships within families are also changing in many societies and can take many different forms.

- (a) Define the term fertility rate. [2]
- (b) Describe two ways in which relationships within families are changing. [4]
- (c) Explain why there has been an increase in single person households. [8]
- (d) Assess the view that increased life expectancy is the most significant factor influencing family structure. [11]

Section B

Answer either Question 2 or Question 3.

- 2 'The nuclear family will always be the dominant family structure because it fits the needs of modern industrial society.' Explain and assess this view. [25]
- 3 Explain and assess the value of feminist theories in understanding the position of females in families. [25]

BLANK PAGE

Permission to reproduce items where third-party owned material protected by copyright is included has been sought and cleared where possible. Every reasonable effort has been made by the publisher (UCLES) to trace copyright holders, but if any items requiring clearance have unwittingly been included, the publisher will be pleased to make amends at the earliest possible opportunity.

To avoid the issue of disclosure of answer-related information to candidates, all copyright acknowledgements are reproduced online in the Cambridge International Examinations Copyright Acknowledgements Booklet. This is produced for each series of examinations and is freely available to download at www.cie.org.uk after the live examination series.

Cambridge International Examinations is part of the Cambridge Assessment Group. Cambridge Assessment is the brand name of University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate (UCLES), which is itself a department of the University of Cambridge.